Notes of few topics which I have listened while searching quizzes

Notes from video lectures

Topic 4

- Functions comes first then language
  - Functions have two categories communicative and cognitive
  - Functions are universal and forms are vary
  - Language is the product of culture
  - Functions precede language
- Language processing two levels
- Functional – meanings and intentions
- Formal – linguistic forms
- Functional level plays a crucial role in the evolving of surface level forms

Topic 5

- Similarities existing across languages
- Ongoing interaction between individual and societal language behavior
- Each influence the other evolving
- Ongoing interaction between form and function constantly evolving
- Language is a product of culture and socialization
- Individuals appropriate language and influence culture with its use
- Language not a mere response to stimuli and it neutral
- Involves past experience, evaluation of the present, involves emotions and cognition
- Interaction between individuals and society evolves valorization – ascribing values to languages like giving higher and lower functions
- Important to the functioning of linguistic ecology

Topic 6

- Language used in literacy influences language behavior

Abstract concepts in education

Requires mapping on different cognitive functions

Less literate societies – slower pace of change in language

Institutions exerts their own behavior

Values ascribed to languages in educational institutions

Urdu, Sindhi, Persian, English shifts in language behavior

Topic 7-8

Language Change

Communicative needs between two or more languages give birth to pidgin

Pidgins mutually intelligible vernaculars

Pidgin may transfer to creole – it becomes the mother tongue of first community – serves new functions

Topic 9

Self-regulation

Language is a self-regulation behavior

Old forms may cease to exist

All higher order behavior is self-regulated – language switching

Topic 10

Language change in society

Pidginization is the new code of communication

Functions are more important than language itself

In multilingual contexts one or two languages valued more because of the functions assigned to them

The valorization of certain functions and languages affects individual language behavior – it leads to language shift, change, attrition

Topics 11

Development aspects of language behavior

Has received more attention at individual than societal level

Psychological theorizing – rooted in social interactions

Piaget : explained with the reference general human behavior ( adaption and accommodation)

Mac Whinney 1982 Competition model – Psycholinguistic model of language processing based on connectionism

Psychological vs linguistic approaches different emphasis

Functionalist approach – rooted in social interactions and primary of functions

Topic 17

Cognitive Organization – how are the two languages use to express the meanings

Compound Organization – two linguistic systems represent with the same set of meanings i.e. maiz table

Coordinate organization – two different set of meanings in different cultures. Like clever – chalak in uk and pak (negative connotation vs positive connotation)

Topic 14

Diglossia – functions are clearly assigned in diglossia – Monolingualism

Change in social networks triggers change in language behavior

Language introduction – affects social networks

Language shift - across generations

Language attrition – individual level

Topic 26

Territorial bilingualism – with two or more languages having an official status

Examples, Canada, India, Switzerland

Multilingual contexts of asia, Africa – several ethnic languages with lingua francas

Diglossic bilingualism - two languages in a community - complementing each other with one variety with a higher status – you have one language to perform to one type of function and one language for other type of functions and there is no competition between two languages.

Best of luck 😊
